

Thomas Garriepy
Senior International Officer
Division of Continuing Education
Harvard University

Tom Garriepy is the Senior International Officer overseeing strategic global growth initiatives for Harvard University's Division of Continuing Education (DCE). He is responsible for spearheading the Division's commitment to expand access to higher education to international audiences, while strengthening DCE's capacity to impact and support a diverse student body.

Prior to joining DCE, Mr. Garriepy spent 12 years at Boston University developing the global strategy for continuing and extended education. As a senior member of the Dean's leadership team, he was responsible for creating and managing international operations while ensuring synergies across business units.

In addition to his higher education experiences, Tom has led the strategic partnership efforts for the U.S. chapter of the Forum Francophone des Affaires (FFA-USA), a worldwide alliance of 36 French-speaking nations promoting economic development through business, industry and technology exchanges.

Over the past 20 years, Tom's passion for business development has fueled his interest in consulting entrepreneurial organizations in various spaces, including international education administration, online education and education technology. Tom holds a B.A. in International Affairs from the University of Maine and an M.B.A.